When little Johnny desperately needed £20 pounds to buy his grandmother a present, his mother suggested that he pray for it. So, he prayed, and then wrote a letter to God asking for the money. The Post Office intercepted the letter and forwarded it to the Prime Minister, who was so moved by the request that he instructed the Chancellor to send the boy £5. On receiving the money, Johnny wrote back: "Dear God. Thank you very much for sending me the money. I noticed you had to send it through Westminster and I thought you should know they deducted £15."
