Reflection for the 3rd Sunday of Advent (Year B)

Rejoice, for the Lord is Near

The Third Sunday of Advent is liturgically referred to as the Gaudete Sunday. Gaudete in Latin means rejoice. This exhortation to rejoice in the Lord is taken from the first words of the entrance antiphon of the day – rejoice in the Lord always (Phil 4:4). Thus, the Church invites us to be joyful on this day because the Lord whose coming we have been preparing for is near.

The Good News of Joy: The mission of Christ has been prefigured in the Old Testament in several ways. One of these many ways is the prophecy of the Messiah's mission as expressed in the First Reading (Is 61:1-2,10-11). This mission finds its origin in God himself who is the author of the world's salvation history. It is God who saves, and it is his spirit that renews the world. Also, the Messianic mission of liberation finds its meaning in the context of the Israelites who had returned from exile but still felt the weights of bondage in their lives. These people were poor, broken-hearted, and still felt imprisoned even in their own country. This life of despair deprived them of the joy which the Lord had promised them. Jesus picks up this prophecy (Lk 4:16-19) at the beginning of his own ministry and addressed it to the entire humanity. In applying Isaiah's text to his own ministry, Jesus emphatically stresses his preferential option for the poor. These poor are not only those who are deprived of material prosperity but also those who lack the joy of the Lord in their lives. Many of us find ourselves in certain situations which have deprived us of joy. Even amid these hardships in life, Christ our Lord comes to us with his liberation. He sets us free from the burden which life has placed on us so that we may celebrate his coming in true peace and joy.

Rose Candle: A Reminder of Joy: On the Third Sunday of Advent, the rose candle is lit. Rose is a brighter colour than purple. With the lighting of the rose candle, the Church uses the liturgy of the day to brighten the mood of those who are eagerly waiting for the coming of the Lord. Why should we be joyful amid the difficult situations we find ourselves in life? We should be joyful because Christ our Saviour will be born to us. At Christmas, we shall once again have the joy of celebrating the birth of Christ. We shall also have the pleasure of sharing this joy with others. (Rm 12:15). However, the fullest experience of this joy is in heaven.

Joy in Witnessing to the Lord: When he encountered Christ in his mother's womb, John was already filled with joy knowing that the Saviour of the world would soon be born (Lk 1:44). As he bore witness to Christ, he also stated that, unknown to them, the Christ was already among the people. That is the message of Christmas. It is the message of Christ who comes among us in the flesh (Jn 1:14). While we may not recognise him when the paths of life are tough, Christ sees and understands all our trials, and he brings joy into our lives. This joy of the coming of Christ which the Church invites us to share today then becomes a preparation for the eternal joy which we shall experience in heaven. May the coming of Christ into the world fill our hearts with joy and prepare us for our eternal home in heaven. Amen.
